DISTRICT A: THE LION, THE WITCH, AND THE WARDROBE

On April 22nd, Kennedy Heights Montessori Center and District A brings you Cincinnati Playhouse in the Park, Off-the-Hill!

It's your last chance this year to enjoy the professional quality and performance value that our Playhouse 'Off the Hill' season brings to District A community venues.

WHAT? See "The Lion, the Witch, and the Wardrobe," from the timeless story by C. S. Lewis. You'll remember . . . in Narnia, the land of eternal winter, a White Witch holds power over everyone. If you disagree, you turn to stone. But one day, a girl named Lucy enters this magical land through an enchanted wardrobe and changes everything. Come see for yourself. Travel through the wardrobe with Peter and Lucy in this two-actor adaptation of the classic tale of good prevailing over evil. You're sure to leave with a smile.

WHERE? Come to Kennedy Heights Montessori Center on the KH Cultural Campus at the corner of Kennedy & Montgomery. When you arrive, you're invited to explore the amazing all-new KHMC facilities before you smile your way through a classic tale told in 21st century style.

WHEN? Show time is 7PM, on 4/22/17. From 6PM on (weather permitting) there will be picnic foods and fun outside, too. After the performance, at 8PM, our actors and audience members get a chance to talk to each other.

TICKETS? No need; just come on in. Donations ($5/adults) are happily accepted at the door, but certainly not required. Children are always free and everyone's always welcome!

Our promise to you: Whether you come alone or bring your neighbors, your family or your grandchild, you're bound to get hooked on this uniquely professional, community, family theater.

See you at Kennedy Heights Montessori, on KH Cultural Campus, on 4/22/17!

24th Annual SAP RUN

& Pancake Breakfast!

Saturday, April 8, 2017 9:00-11:00 AM

Meet at the Kennedy Heights Presbyterian Church Parking Lot

Walk, jog, run, and share an all-you-can-eat pancake breakfast with your neighbors during the twenty-fourth annual SAP Run!

8:30-9:00 AM: Register at the start line in the KHPC parking lot or pre-register online by April 1st to receive a free SAP Run tee-shirt at www.kennedyheights.org.

9:00-10:00 AM: You're off for a 5K where you can walk, jog or run on the designated routes. Routes will start and end at the Kennedy Heights Presbyterian Church parking lot.

10:00-11:00 AM: Return refreshed and accomplished for the all-you-can-eat pancake breakfast.

To register in advance and receive a free SAP Run shirt, go to www.kennedyheights.org.

The SAP Run is a community fund raiser sponsored by Nehemiah MFG, the Kennedy Heights Community Council and the Kennedy Heights Presbyterian Church. Funds raised from the event are invested back into the community for neighborhood events like Play in the Park, beautification, community garden and the arts! For more information on how you can volunteer, please contact KHCC@kennedyheights.org

"Community engagement refers to the process by which community benefit organizations and individuals build ongoing, permanent relationships for the purpose of applying a collective vision for the benefit of a community."
- Wikipedia

Hello my fellow residents! I took this quote directly out of Wikipedia since it was a great definition of what we are trying to accomplish. We are a wonderful community that has a rich and diverse history that we should all be very proud of. We are looking at ways of getting more engagement from the members of our community at our council meetings. What would you like to see more of, less of or something new that would be beneficial to others? For example, we are working on having a guest speaker to share information about news, activities and opportunities at each of our council meetings. What would you like to see? Please share your thoughts with me at dan@kennedyheights.org

Thanks,

KHAC: ARTIST-IN-RESIDENCE

The Kennedy Heights Arts Center welcomes Joshua Brown from Inlet Dance Company (located in Cleveland, OH) as our 2017 Artist-in-Residence! Each spring, with support of the Ohio Arts Council, KHAC hosts an artist to engage with our community. This year's residency will focus on Joshua collaborating with a wide range of participants to create a performance that engages people in movement, assists with building new relationships, and emphasizes new appreciation and understanding of the performing arts. Dance can be a means to developing self-discipline, teamwork, body awareness, physical fitness and self-confidence. Embrace the JOY of dancing – everyone can do it! No experience necessary! It's FREE to participate, but Registration is required as space is limited. Check the website at <http://kennedyarts.org/learn/#tab4> soon for more details about our 2017 Artist-In-Residence schedule which will be announced soon! Find out more about this Residency by joining us for a FREE Dance Performance and Welcoming Reception for Joshua Brown on Saturday, March 18th starting at 7pm. Located at the KHAC Lindner Annex (corner of Kennedy Ave and Montgomery Rd)

MEET YOUR NEIGHBORS: JULIE SPANGLER

She tickles the ivories downtown in her day job, but she calls Kennedy Heights home. Julie Spangler Klug, principal pianist for the Cincinnati Pops, moved to our neighborhood over 21 years ago because she fell in love with a home on Orchard Avenue. She and her husband, Roger, thought it was a perfect starter home – 3 BR, 1 BA. But over time fell in love with the neighborhood, the neighbors. "We had our babies there. It's full of memories. How do you leave that?" The answer is, you don't.

A kitchen remodel in the early 2000s helped when their first daughter was born and that worked for a while as they had another daughter and made many friends. Then it started to be a little cramped. Faced with moving from Kennedy Heights and a street they loved, they couldn't do it. In 2012, they added on a full addition for a master bedroom and bath, bigger gathering space and eating area.

But it's not just about the house. Orchard is a highly desirable Avenue with huge trees and beautiful gaslights that are decorated each year at Halloween (as ghosts) and Christmas (with lights). They are close friends with many neighbors and enjoy progressive dinner parties and the craziness of hundreds and hundreds of visitors on Halloween night. There's a lot of money spent on candy in the Klug house. "It's one of my favorite times of the year, seeing all the kids parading down the street."

Julie and Roger (a talented musician as well), regularly share their talents to help benefit our neighborhood. They perform at the Kennedy Heights Arts Center for various functions and fund raisers – including Winterfest. She has been involved for decades with the musical liturgy at Nativity Parish. Julie also shares that Roger loves performing at Everybody's Records – come see him!

When asked what she loves about our neighborhood, Julie said, "Kennedy Heights is small town friendliness with access to one of the greatest cities in the US in just a few minutes." Being on Orchard, "it's short walk to the library, the Coffee Exchange and Loving Hut." She feels it's the perfect mix of up and coming and established. "Kennedy Heights lets you quickly get to Reds games, the Museum Center, the Zoo, bike trails ... it's amazing!"

One of her most poignant memories is Kennedy Heights Montessori. She shared that both of her girls went there and how it prepped them well for success at Nativity School for eight years. "KHMC was the greatest gift we ever received. Our family was tremendously blessed by that school, the teachers and all of the aides." Well said, Julie. Well said.

TELLING THE KENNEDY HEIGHTS STORY #10 LEWIS AND DELIA KENNEDY, PART 9

A November 1892 Enquirer article stated that Lewis Kennedy, the “former successful proprietor of Yononte Inn,” escorted from Cincinnati a party of ten persons to his “new hostelry”, the Lithia Spring Hotel, in Tallapoosa, Ga., where he was proprietor until probably the fall of 1896. The Kennedy’s were not the Hotel’s owners; in all likelihood Mr. Kennedy served as the hotel’s chief executive. (Research with the Tallapoosa Historical Society is ongoing.)

The village of Tallapoosa is about fifty miles west of Atlanta, just a few miles from Alabama, in the foothills of the Appalachian mountains. In 1890 the village had 1,700 residents; today it has 3,100 residents.

The New York Times reported in 1887 that the Tallapoosa area was known as “one of the least populated and most lawless counties of Georgia...of moonshiners and shotgun gangs...and no man was ever sure of his life here.” But beginning around 1885 “a wonderful transformation” was propelled by the discovery of rich “veins of gold, copper, marble, granite and iron”, and the need for railways.

Construction of the Lithia Springs Hotel began prior to 1886. It was primarily developed by Ralph L. Spencer, of Connecticut who also established three businesses in Tallapoosa, one being a glass factory.

The hotel has been described as the “most outstanding building built during the Tallapoosa’s Yankee-created boom years”. In 1892, the year that the Kennedy’s arrived, it was the “largest wooden structure East of the Mississippi River”, and the “largest hotel in the Southeast in the late 19th and early 20th century.” The Hotel, with four floors, cost $200,000 (today that would be approximately $5.1M) and the furnishings cost $75,000 ($1.9M). It had 175 rooms (our Yononte Inn only had 52 rooms!), including elevators, pool rooms, bowling alleys, and a large banquet and ball room. The property consisted of thirteen acres for lawn parties, tennis courts, riding trails, landscaped gardens, and, most importantly, four mineral springs.

The hotel, and the nearby village of Lithia Springs, Ga., was named for the area’s springs which contained bromine-lithium “once considered the most valuable alkaline known to the medical profession”, resulting in extensive tourism from both in and out of state.

The wine industry soon “became the primary focus of income” for the hotel, the village and the county. But they “prospered for only two decades”. In 1907, eleven years after the Kennedy’s returned to Cincinnati, the state of Georgia enacted a prohibition law that eventually led to the hotel’s demise.

We do not know why the Kennedy’s returned to Cincinnati. During the Kennedy’s first and second years at the Hotel Mr. Kennedy’s local business, the Lewis Kennedy and Company, on West Fourth Street, was listed as being a real estate and loan agent, and a commission merchant of grains and seeds. Mr. Kennedy is not listed in Cincinnati and Hamilton County directories for 1895 and 1896.

THE CARING PLACE: DEPARTMENT STORE

Did you know we have our very own department store in Kennedy Heights? Thursday volunteers Sue Ramsay (left) and Karol Hunt take great pride in displaying the merchandise and serving customers. Their shop has a complete line of new or gently used items. There are shoes for children and adults, house wares including linens. In the clothing line there are school uniforms, hats and coats, belts and underwear along with shirts, dresses and pants. Some jewelry items are available (e.g. earrings, pins, bracelets) and they are quite popular with shoppers. They even have baby clothes, cribs and strollers and small kitchen appliances. Another department has books and games for both children and adults.

Store manager Liz Bellew originally recruited Sue and Karol as substitutes but “once they came, they were hooked. Everyone is there for the same reason: to help people. It’s a cheerful and happy place,” Liz said.

When Karol was invited she thought, “Why not? I love clothes. I like helping people find clothing. I have really enjoyed volunteering and the clients are most appreciative.”

Clients can shop once a month and get a number of items based on the size of their households. Think about it: you may have something in your cupboard that another person needs. Got an extra purse? Bring it in. Men’s clothing, shoes and socks are always in demand. One time a young man brought in ten new children’s winter coats. Sometimes clients donate clothing they no longer need. It’s a cycle of giving and receiving.

Stop by The Caring Place, located in the Kennedy Heights Presbyterian Church, between 9 and 2 on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

MEET YOUR NEIGHBORS: THE REDWOOD CARRY OUT

Jay Singh’s pride and joy is the Redwood Carry Out at Woodford and Kennedy. The city skyline mural and well-kept landscaping greet people as they arrive at his business, a welcoming place for neighbors and friends.

Inside there is just about everything imaginable you can find in a convenience store from the newspaper to t-shirts and ball caps, lottery tickets and food of all kinds, including bread and milk, cottage cheese and eggs. Craft beers are his biggest seller right now. “I enjoy dealing with people,” Jay says. “It’s fun and time goes by fast. It’s not boring.” One of the customers comments, “He’s a good guy. He does a good job.”

Except for a few years Jay has owned the store since 1985 and during the week has help from his two sons, both graduates of Ohio State. The Redwood is open seven days a week from 7-11 Monday – Thursday, 7-12 Friday and Saturday and 9 – 11 on Sunday and includes a drive-up window for shoppers’ convenience.

Gardening is Jay’s way of relaxing but last year deer ate his vegetables before they ripened so he built a new deer-resistant fence where he’s planted fruit trees. Jay has had no trouble in the years he’s owned the store. “I don’t allow loitering or litter. I respect people and they respect me.” Jay is one of the Friends of Kennedy Heights. Let’s support the only grocery we have in Kennedy Heights.

MEET YOUR NEIGHBORS: ROBIN CAROTHERS

Kennedy Heights is proud of Robin Corothers, a resident with her husband Don for 31 years. “We love the neighborhood. Its diversity is vital and very important to us.” When the Mill Creek was a foul smelling ‘hopeless cause’ in 1994, Robin founded Groundwork Cincinnati/Mill Creek. Under her leadership the Mill Creek has become a valuable, healthy, green asset that supports revitalization of Mill Creek neighborhoods (which includes Kennedy Heights and Pleasant Ridge).

The nonprofit has provided environmental education programming for over 39,000 middle and senior high school students using the Mill Creek watershed as a living laboratory for hands on learning. It has created a Green Jobs Site and employed and mentored 55 youth, planted thousands of trees and completed 35 eco-restoration projects including wetlands and wildlife habitat. It also has constructed five-miles of the City’s Mill Creek Greenway Trail, raised over $4 million from public and private sources to support the work, and transformed many acres of derelict properties in the river corridor into public greenspace, trails, and gardens.

Groundwork Cincinnati led other trail proponents in a 15-month study, funded by Interact for Health, to forge the Cincinnati Connects Plan which recommends development of a 42-mile urban loop trail encircling most of the Cincinnati’s neighborhoods. The plan calls for building all four of the city’s major trails (the Mill Creek Greenway Trail, Ohio River Trail West, Oasis, and Wasson Way) and linking them together with six connector trails. Corothers said, “The Cincinnati Connects Trail is an opportunity to provide every city resident regardless of their income a viable alternative transportation option (walking and bicycling) that connects them to where they need to go without a vehicle.”

She knew from the beginning that Mill Creek would be a 50-year, intergenerational initiative. Her job was to kick start the effort. “That’s why Groundwork Cincinnati has invested so heavily in educating youth and instilling a conservation ethic in them. The progress Groundwork has made to date to reclaim Cincinnati’s river and restore wildlife habitat is just astounding.”

Robin recently retired and garnered praise from local, regional and national leaders. She and her husband traveled to Spain to celebrate her retirement. “I don’t have any specific retirement plans yet. I’m taking a year off to figure it out,” Robin said. We hope Kennedy Heights will become part of her plan.
